LOVING CUP FOR LANGFORD. Second Division Honors Him on Twentyfifth Anniversary as Fireman

Deputy Fire Chief Thomas R. Langford was told over the telephone yesterday morning that there was trouble over at the home of Hook and Ladder Company 20 in Mercer street and would he go right over and attend to it. That's the house the thought of a row in his old company caused him to urge his driver to skip the low places on the way.

The chief jumped through the doors to find seventy-five men of the second di-vision, of which he is in charge, standing stiff and solemnlike in their dress uniforms with their battalion chiefs alongside.

"Well, what's the row?" demanded the istonished chieftain. Up stepped acting Chief Jennings, fore-Up stepped acting Chief Jennings, fore-man of Truck 20, and made a speech right at Langford before the latter could say another word. He told the chief that considering the fact that he had been fighting fires for twenty-five years and was a ripsnorting, good, old time smoke eating fireman at that, "the gang" wanted to show what they thought of Chief Lang-ford and would the arrangement commit-tee come forward?
